VILLA EPHRUSSI DE ROTHSCHILD

Villa Ephrussi de Rothschild is located in Saint-Jean-Cap-Ferrat between Nice (9km away) and Monaco (15km away).

The "Ile de France museum", owned by the Académie des Beaux Arts from Institut de France, is one of the former properties of Baroness Beatrix de Rothschild (1864–1934), the wife of Baron Maurice Ephrussi, daughter of Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, banker and great art collector.

Born at the Château des Ferrières in Paris, Baroness Beatrix de Rothschild commissioned this lavish Belle Epoque style residence, which was built between 1905 and 1912 on Saint-Jean-Cap-Ferrat peninsula, in order to host her art collections; mainly composed of works from the 18th century. Visitors can admire pieces by renowned names from the period such as Boucher, Fragonard, Coypel, Schall, Tiepolo, Dubois, Riesner and Hache. The Villa is surrounded by nine magnificent themed gardens, each reflecting the Baroness' passion for travel.

CHATEAU DE VAUGRENIER

The Château de Vaugrenier is located in Villeneuve-Loubet, between Cannes and Nice.

The castle was built in the style of the famous Italian architect Palladio from Vicenza. It was built at the end of the 16th century by a family from Provence related to Monseigneur du Laurens, the famous archbishop of Arles. The castle is characterized, on the main floor, by an imposing central room, typical of Palladian buildings, and a small oratory with stucco work. On the upper floors and especially on the first floor, there are magnificent vaulted rooms.

The Terrasse aux Bassins

- Capacity: 300 people around the pools, 400 people on the forecourt, up to 1000 people for a cocktail.

The Fresco Room

- Capacity: 115 people seated dinner with dance floor, 150 people in cocktail.
